Pakistan studies

Prepared by Umer Farooque

Chapter 2

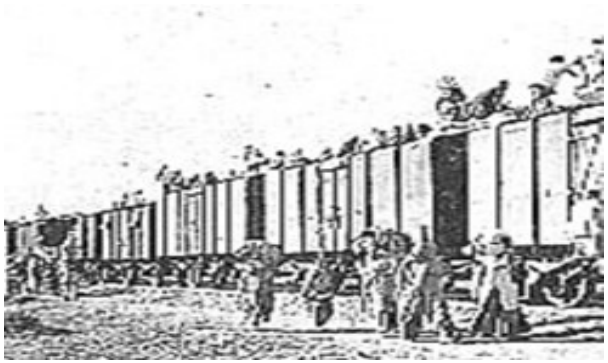

In the name of Allah, the Most Merciful, the Most Kind

Political History Of Pakistan

The early years (1947-58)

- Pakistan was striated in hopeless urgency. It came into existence with horrible loss of life and property, and the migration of millions of dazed.

The first prime minister

Liaquat Ali Khan's contributions to the struggle for independence were numerous. After independence, he was thus the natural choice for the premiership. Liaquat Ali Khan was appointed as the first prime minister of Pakistan.

Jinnah and Mount batten talks

The history of two-sided negotiations exist to Kashmir between the leaders of India and Pakistan at the state level can be traced back to November 1947. The meeting of the join defense council was scheduled at Delhi only four days after the occupation of Kashmir by the Indian force.

Kashmir crisis

The last of the disobedient state, was the reverse of Hyderabad. It had a Hindu ruler, Maharaja Hari Singh, but his subjects were mostly Muslims, accounting to 78 percent of the total population. Kashmir issue still remains disputed and unresolved.

Death of Quaid e Azam

In September 11, 1948.Quaid-e-Azam had been ailing since long before Independence. By the time of Independence, he was quite an old man but still possessing a strong spirit. He hid the weakness caused by severely cancer had developed as well Quaid - e-Azam was convinced that if word of illness leaked out, he worked almost 24 hours a day and always preferred performing his national obligations to his own ailment.

Khawaja Nazimuddin

After Pakistan came into being on August 14, 1947, Nazimuddin was appointed the first Chief Minister of the Province of East Bengal. When the founder of Pakistan, Quaid-i-Azam, Muhammad Ali died on September 1948, Nazimuddin was the second governor general of Pakistan. Under Quaid-i-Azam's constitutional framework, executive powers settle with the Prime Minister. When Liaquat Ali Khan was assassinated on October 16, 1951, Khawaja Nazimuddin, who was the second Prime minister of the Pakistan.

Ghulam muhammed

when Khawaja Nazimuddin took over as a 2nd Prime Minister in 1951, Ghulam Muhammad was appointed as the Third Governor General. After coming to power, Ghulam Muhammad wanted to change the status of executive powers.

Muhammad Ali Bogra

Muhammad Ali Bogra became the 3rd Prime Minister of Pakistan in April 1953. He made an emotional appeal to Pandit Nehru to settle all outstanding disputes land between the two countries.

Choudhry Muhammad Ali

Become a 4th prime minister.On October 24, 1954, Malik Ghulam Muhammad dissolved the Constituent Assembly of Muhammad Ali Bogra on the grounds that it had “lost the confidence of the people”, and declared a state of emergency in the country. After some issues Choudhry Mohammad Ali as the new prime minister on august 11, 1955.

Iskander Mirza

In August 1955, Major General Iskander Mirza took over as a Governor General when Ghulam Muhammad became too ill to continue. He was confirmed as the fourth Governor General of Pakistan.

West Pakistan

And East Pakistan combine Even after eight years of existence, Pakistan was without a constitution. The main reason was believed to be the fact that there were two unequal wings of Pakistan separated from west Pakistan.

After assuming charge as Prime Minister, Chaudhry Muhammad Ali along with his team worked day and night to composed a constitution for Pakistan. His efforts led to the first constitution made in 1956.

Hussain Shaheed Suhrwardy

As a 5th Prime minister Soon after the affecting of the 1956 Constitution, Hussain Shaheed Suhrwardy replaced Chaudhry Muhammad Ali as Prime Minister on September 12, 1956.

Ibrahim Ismail chundrigar

- 6TH Prime minister after just a year, Suhrawardy resigned from his Premiership in October 1957. His resignation came as a result of the President's refusal to convene a meeting of the Parliament to seek a vote of confidence.
- First president of Pakistan Islander Mirza
- Governor General Ghulam Muhammad's despotic and dictatorial policy led Iskander Mirza and his collaborators to force him out of power. Although his removal was necessary, yet another dictator, Iskander Mirza.

Malik Feroz khan

As a 7th Prime minister On December 16, 1957, Malik Feroz Khan took over the office of Prime Minister from Chundrigar. Malik Feroz Khan Noon was the last in the line of Prime Ministers under the president-ship of Iskander mirza.

It was a short story of 1947-1958. With seven prime ministers.

The constitution of 1956

- The 1956 constitution provides for Parliamentary form of government with all the executive powers in the hands of Prime Minister. President was Head of the State and was to be elected by all Members of the National and Provincial Assemblies. He was to hold office for 5 years.
- The Constitution of 1956 consisted of 234 articles, divided into 13 parts and 6 schedules.

Main features of 1956 constitution

- Pakistan was declared as the Islamic Republic and it was made compulsory that only a Muslim could become the President of the country.
- The constitution provided for the Parliamentary form of Government, yet it declared that the executive authority of the Federation would be in the president.
- Any Muslim citizen of Pakistan, who was at least forty years old, could be elected as the President of Pakistan for the term of five years.
- President could appoint from amongst the MNAs a Prime Minister who had to take the vote of confidence from the house in two months. The Prime Minister had to inform the president about all the decisions of the cabinet.
- Ministers could be taken from outside the National Assembly but they were to get themselves elected within six months.
- It was a Written Constitution. There were more features of constitution 1956.

Military Interventions
The Ayub khan Era: 1958-1969

Mohammad Ayub Khan was Born in May 14, 1907 near Larkana Pakistan and Died in April 19, 1974 (aged 66) near Islamabad Pakistan.

The 1958 Pakistani takeover began on October 7, when the first President of Pakistan Iskander Mirza break off the Constitution of Pakistan and declared martial law, and continue until October 27, when Mirza himself was remove by Gen. Ayub Khan, the Commander-in-Chief of the Pakistan Army.

Military Interventions
The Ayub khan Era: 1958-1969

- All of the government machinery; legislatures, central and provincial were dissolved. After three days of martial law, an order named Laws (Continuance in Force) Order 1958 was issued by CMLA Ayub Khan. This order was a new legal order which replaced the old legal order i.e. The Constitution of Pakistan 1956.

- General Ayub khan appointed a commission on 17 February 1960 to report on the future political frame work, The commission he appointed was headed by the former Chief justice of Pakistan , Mr. justice Mohammed Shahabuddin, and ten other member, Five each East Pakistan and five West Pakistan. The commission prepared a lengthy questionnaire of 40 items. The report of the constitution commission was presented to president Ayub on 6 May 1961. And in January 1962, the cabinet finally approved the text of the new constitution. It was announce by, president Ayub khan on 1st March, 1962 and finally came into effect on 8 june 1962.

Salient features of the constitution of 1962.

- Written constitution
- Inflexible constitution
- Islamic provisions
- Federal systems
- Uni cameral legislature
- Presidential form of government
- Election of president
- Powers of president
- In common law and removal of the president
- Restrictions of the president
- The speaker
- Election and powers of legislatures
- Command of emergency
- Role of judiciary
- Languages

The constitution of 1962

- Pakistan made for Muslim country that's way 1962 constitution had introduced an advisory council of Islamic ideology. The functions of the council are to make recommendations to the government central and provincial. Islam and to examine all laws in force with a view and set out in the holy Quran and sunnah.
- Drawbacks of the constitution of 1962. The constitution laid down simply that the state of Pakistan shell be a republic under the name of ''Republic of Pakistan'' the word Islamic was dropped in the constitution. Later, the first amendment (December, 1963) correct the name of Pakistan ''Islamic Republic of Pakistan''.

The Ayub khan Era: 1958-1969

- During the period of Ayub Khan, the first election under the constitution was on a non-party basis. However, political parties were refresh in 1962 and in the second election which were held in December 1964-january 1965; the cabinet opposition parties put up Miss Fatima Jinnah, the sister of founder of nation.
- In 1969 a mass movement was lead by the People's Party in the West Pakistan and Awami league in the East Pakistan, and both parties tried to revolt against the dictator Ayub Khan. Under the pressure of public opinion, Ayub Khan resigned from president ship on 25 March, 1969 and handed over the power to commander in chief of the army General Yahya Khan.

The General Yahya Khan

Yahya Khan, in full Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan was born in February 4, 1917, near Peshawar, and died in August 10, 1980. General Agha Muhammad Yahya Khan commonly known as Yahya Khan, was a Pakistani military general who served as the third President of Pakistan and Chief of Army staff from 18 September 1966 to 20 December 1971.

The General Yahya Khan

- In 1971 a serious conflict arise between the central government and the Awami Party of what was then East Pakistan, led by Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. The East Pakistani leader demanded autonomy for his half of the geographically divided country, and Yahya Khan responded by ordering the army to defeated the Awami Party. The brutality with which his orders were carried out and the resulting flood of millions of East Pakistani refugees into India led to the Indian captured of East Pakistan and the rout of its West Pakistani citizen.

The General Yahya Khan

- His political time was marked by these significant features:
- a: Legal Framework Order 1970
- b: Dissolution of One-Unit
- c: Holding of Pakistan's first free elections on adult permission d: The sweeping success of the Pakistan People's Party in West Pakistan and of Awami League in East Pakistan that ended up activate serious political differences between the two wings of the country.
- e: The war of 1971 and the division of Pakistan into two independent states.
- After becoming the President of Pakistan, Yahya Khan declared that he aimed to restore law and order in the country, form a new constitution, and return to the barracks. That's why he announced to hold free and fair elections as soon as possible. The elections were, however, postponed for some reasons including floods and cyclones in East Pakistan. At last in December 1970, free and fair elections were held.

East Pakistan became the country of Bangladesh

- Approximately 93,000 Pakistani servicemen were taken prisoner by the Indian Army, which included 79,676 to 81,000 uniformed persons of the Pakistan Armed Forces, including some Bengali soldiers who had remained loyal to Pakistan.
- East Pakistan became the independent country of Bangladesh, and with its loss Yahya Khan resigned (December 20, 1971).
- He was replaced by his foreign minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who put him under house arrest. Shortly afterward he was paralyzed by a stroke and, after his release, played no further important political role.

Democratic Transitions

The Zulfiqar ali Bhutto Government 1971-1977

Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was born in January 5, 1928, near Larkana, Sindh and died in April 4, 1979, Rawalpindi, Pakistan), Pakistani statesman and politician who served as president (1971–73) and prime minister (1973–77) of Pakistan. Although a popular leader, he was overthrown and executed by the military.

Born into a noble Rajput family that had accepted Islam, Bhutto was the son of a prominent political figure in the Indian colonial government. He was educated in Bombay (now Mumbai) and at the University of California, Berkeley (B.A., 1950). Bhutto studied law at the University of Oxford and then practiced law and lectured in England. Upon his return to Pakistan (1953), he set up a law practice in Karachi, where he was appointed a member of Pakistan's delegation to the United Nations in 1957.

The Zulfiqar ali Bhutto Government 1971-1977

- After Mohammad Ayub Khan seized the government in 1958, Bhutto was appointed commerce minister and then held other cabinet posts. After his appointment as foreign minister (1963–66), His opposition to the peace with India after the 1965 war over Kashmir caused him to resign from the government, and in December 1967 he founded the Pakistan People's Party. Bhutto denounced the Ayub Khan regime as a dictatorship and was afterwords imprisoned (1968–69). After the downfall of the Ayub Khan regime by Gen. Agha Muhammad Yahya Khan, national elections were held in 1970.

The Zulfiqar ali Bhutto Government 1971-1977

- Although Bhutto and his party won a sweeping electoral victory in West Pakistan, the biggest election winner was the Awami League, an East Pakistan-based party that had campaigned for full autonomy for East Pakistan. Bhutto refused to form a government with this separatist party, causing a dissolution of the election. Civil war, after which East Pakistan, with the help of India, emerged as the independent state of Bangladesh. After West Pakistan's sham defeat by India in this military conflict, Yahya Khan turned the government over to Bhutto on December 20, 1971.
- After the new constitution (1973) made the presidency largely ceremonial, Bhutto became prime minister. In both capacities, he had also filled the cabinet posts of foreign affairs, defense, and interior. His government, continue martial law, began a process of Islamization.

The Zulfiqar ali Bhutto Government 1971-1977

- Bhutto ordered new elections in 1977 to obtain a popular mandate. His party won by a large majority, but the opposition charged him with electoral fraud. The government was seized by Gen. Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq, the army chief of staff, on July 5, 1977. Soon afterward Bhutto was imprisoned. He was punished to death (March 18, 1978) on the charge of having ordered the assassination of a political candidate in 1974; after an appeal to a high court, Bhutto was hanged, even though appeals for kindness from several world leaders.Additional information the Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto appointed Zia ul haq as a Chief of Army Staff in 1976 and awarded him the Hilal-i-Imtiaz medal.

MAJOR REFORMS

- His reforms were twofold: nationalization, and the improvement of workers' rights. In the first phase, basic industries like steel, chemical and cement were nationalized. This was done in 1972. The next major step in nationalization took place on 1 January 1974, when Bhutto nationalized all banks.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- The Constitution of Pakistan, also known as the 1973 Constitution, is the supreme law of Pakistan. Drafted by the government of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, with additional assistance from the country's opposition parties, it was approved by the Parliament on 10 April and approved on 14 August 1973.
- The 1973 Constitution provides for a parliamentary form of government where the executive authority of the state vests with the Prime Minister. The President, according to the Constitution, is at the top, representing the unity of the Republic. From 1947 to 1973, the country had a unicameral(one house system) system of legislature.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- A bill to provide a constitution for the Islamic Republic of Pakistan was introduced in the assembly on February 2, 1973, which was passed on 12 April, and announced on 14 August, 1973.
- The salient features of 1973 Constitution of Pakistan are as under:
- The Constitution of 1973 is a written document. There are 280 articles and 7 schedules of the Constitution.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- Federal Constitution:
- The Constitution of 1973 is Federal Constitution. It establishes a central government and the governments of the federating units, namely, the province of Punjab, Sindh, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Baluchistan.
- Parliamentary form of Government:
- Like the Constitution of 1956 but unlike the Constitution of 1962, the Constitution of 1973, provides Pakistan with a parliamentary form of government.
- In a parliamentary form of government, maximum powers are vested in the elected parliament and the Prime Minister, being head of government has many more powers than the head of State (President).
- Bicameral Legislature:
- The Constitution of 1973 provides for the establishment of a bicameral legislature in Pakistan. Pakistani Parliament consists of two houses, namely, National Assembly, the lower house, and the Senate, the upper house.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- Rigid Constitution:

- The Constitution of 1973 is a rigid constitution in the sense that it requires a Two-third majority of the parliament (National Assembly and Senate) for amendment in it.

- Fundamental Rights:

- The 1973 Constitution guarantees fundamental rights to the citizens of Pakistan. Some of these areas are:
- Equality of all citizens before the law.
- Security of persons and of their properties and other belongings.
- Right to acquire, hold or dispose of the property in any part of Pakistan.
- Freedom of speech
- Freedom of expression
- Freedom of association
- Religious Freedom
- Right to adopt any lawful profession.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- National language:

- The Constitution of 1973 provides for Urdu as the national language of Pakistan. Regional languages have also been provided full protection by the Constitution.

- Islamic Provisions of the Constitution of 1973:

The following are the Islamic provisions of the Constitution of 1973.

- The Constitution of 1973 also names the country the Islamic Republic of Pakistan.
- Islam is the State Religion of Pakistan.
- Sovereignty belongs to Allah Almighty.
- Only Muslims could become the President and Prime Minister of Pakistan.
- Islamic way of life.
- Islamization of laws.

CONSTITUTION OF 1973

- Direct Election System:

- The direct Election System is another salient feature of 1973 Constitution of Pakistan. The members of the National Assembly and Provincial Assembly are selected through Direct Election.
- Conclusions:

- It is concluded that The National Assembly approved the 1973 Constitution of Pakistan on April 10, 1973, and show it on August 14, 1973. Some salient features of 1973 Constitution of Pakistan are – written, federal, parliamentary, bicameral, rigid, etc.

Foreign Policy

- He called the Islamic Summit Conference at Lahore on 22-24 February 1974, which proved a huge success. Bhutto's capacities were much bigger than the geographical limits of Pakistan.
- Immediately after assuming political power, he toured most of the Muslim countries, contacted Heads of the State, discussed the situation under which Pakistan had to suffer, he explained the potentials of the Muslim countries; and spoke about his further programmed for welfare of the Muslim World.

- Pakistan has relationship with different countries, economically, politically and friendly.
- Relations with China
- Relations with United States
- Relations with Soviet Union
- Relations with Afghanistan
- Relations with Iran
- Relations with Arab States

The Downfall of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto

- It was during the elections of 1977 that Bhutto's administration ended and a new period of marital law emerged. During the 1977 elections it was widely believed that Bhutto would win due to the divided opposition. . However, the opposition parties created an electoral alliance known as the Pakistan National Alliance (PNA). . However, despite many efforts by PNA, the PPP won the elections, pushing PNA to engage in a mass movement against Bhutto. The business and trading community that was alienated by PPP funded the mass movement, while the closure of shops and businesses also did damage to the government. Bhutto in response used the police, the FSF and the army to control the mass movement as well as arrested the top leaders of PNA.

The Downfall of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto

- On April 22, 1977 Bhutto imposed martial law in Karachi, Hyderabad and Lahore and called upon the army to restore law and order as well as hold trails. The continuous use of the military to control the mass movement and against the opposition parties did not just place the military in a bad position, but also the government. Moreover, the deteriorating image of Bhutto also gave a chance to the military to take over political affairs once again. Therefore, due to the lack of negotiations between Bhutto and PNA, the military assumed power on July 5, 1977 by removing Bhutto from power. The new martial law regime of Zia ul Haq also placed Bhutto on trial for the murder of Muhammad Ali Kasuri and the high court ruled Bhutto guilty and punish him to death in an uncommon three to four decision.And On April 4,

The Downfall of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto

- United States providing financial support to the Pakistani military has enabled the United States to have influence and presence in the region. It can be stated that the ousting of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto from office was due to the alliance between the United States and the Pakistani military, and Pakistani military with opposition parties.

The Zia Regime: 1977-1988

Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq was born Aug. 12, 1924, Jullundur, Punjab and died in Aug. 17, 1988, near Bahāwalpur, Pakistan.

- Event leading to Bhutto's hanging
- ISLAMABAD, Pakistan, Wednesday, April 4 Zulfikar All Bhutto, the former Prime Minister of Pakistan, was hanged early today in the Rawalpindi District Jail, where he had been confined since his position last year on- charges of murder a political opponent(enemy) in 1974.

Event leading to Bhutto’s hanging

- A senior spokesman for the military Government said the execution had taken place at 4 A.M. The spokesman, Wing Commander Mohammed Afzal, stated that the body had been taken immediately to Mr. Bhutto's birthplace near Larkana In Sindh Province and buried in ceremony attended by family members.
- Jail sources said that the hanging had taken place in the presence of officials of the military Government, which headed by President Mohammed Zia ul Haq.

Major policies and the process of Islamization

- When General Zia-ul-Haq took over as the Chief Martial Law Administrator on July 5, 1977, Islamization was given a new boost. General Zia-ul-Haq was a practicing Muslim who raised the slogan of Islam. The Islamic sentiment has always been fully alive in Pakistan. Various governments have used this to their benefit. There are people who doubt Zia's reasons for raising the Islamic slogan; whether it was for political purposes to counter balance Bhutto's appeal or was it to enforce Islam in its true sense.

Major policies and the process of Islamization

- General Zia wanted to bring the legal, social, economic and political institutions of the country in accordance with the Islamic principles, values and traditions in the light of Quran and Sunnah, to enable the people of Pakistan to lead their lives in accordance to Islam. The Government of Zia-ul-Haq took a number of steps to eradicate non-Islamic practices from the country. He introduced the Zakat, Ushr, Islamic Hadood and Penal Code in the country. The Government invited great scholars to compile laws about Islamic financing. The Zakat and Ushr Ordinance to Islamize the economic system was promote on June 20, 1980.

Major policies and the process of Islamization

- Zia-ul-Haq selected his Majlis-i-Shoora in 1980. It was to be the Islamic Parliament and act as the Parliament of Pakistan in place of the National Assembly. A number of other Islamization programs were carried out including the teaching of Islamic Studies and Arabic, which were made compulsory. Pakistan Studies and Islamic Studies were made compulsorily for B. A., B. Sc., Engineering, M. B. B. S., Commerce, Law and Nursing students. For professional studies, extra marks were given to people who were Hafiz-e-Quran. General Zia-ul-Haq wanted to make Pakistan the strong hold of Islam so that it could play an honorable and prominent role for the Islamic world.

Foreign Policy focus on Afghanistan

- Afghanistan is our Muslim neighbor and any development taking place there will definitely impact us. In December 1979, the Russian aggression in Afghanistan had brought serious implications for our safety security and sovereignty. General Ziaul Haq willingly took upon himself to house and feed 35 million Afghan refugees, and provided moral, financial, military and diplomatic support to Afghan freedom fighters. He did all this in such a skillful way that it drew world attention.

Foreign Policy focus on Afghanistan

- World will not forget the role of General Ziaul Haq and his military commanders in Afghanistan's struggle for independence. His role, strategy, political and vision, skillful military planning and achievement will be remembered for long.
- As a military commander, strategist and humanist. He stood side by side with the Mujahidin against a super power in a faithfull manner. He did all this when Pakistan was itself facing financial and political instability and regional threats.

Down fall of Gen- zia ul haq

- After lifting martial law and holding non-partisan elections in 1985, Zia appointed Muhammad Khan Junejo Prime Minister but collect more presidential powers via the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution. After Junejo signed the Geneva Accords in 1988 against Zia's wishes, and called for an inquiry into the Ojhri Camp disaster, Zia dismissed Junejo's government and announced fresh elections in November 1988. He was killed along with several of his top military officials and two American diplomats in a mysterious plane crash near Bahawalpur on 17 August 1988.

Benazir Bhutto and Nawaz Sharif Government 1988-1999

Benazir Bhutto was born on 21 June 1953 and died on 27 December 2007, she was a Pakistani first woman politician who served as the 11th prime minister of Pakistan from 1988 to 1990.

Benazir Bhutto

- Benazir Bhutto, the first woman prime minister of a modern Muslim state, is clearly the beneficiary of dynastic politics and of the emotional ties of a large section of the electorate to her charismatic family. However, this legacy as the daughter of Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto has proven to be a mixed political blessing. Although she inherited her father's party, the PPP, and has led it to victory, the party won a very narrow plurality in the 1988 elections and was therefore forced to enter into a coalition with the MQM (representing Pakistan's muhajir community) and several other parties in order to form a government. Benazir wanted to change the Eighth Amendment in order to strengthen her position as prime minister but could not sufficient political support and soon abandoned the effort. Benazir also faced not only the old problems of the political role of the military forces, the division of power between the central and provincial governments, and the role of Islam.

Benazir Bhutto

- Benazir's problems were further emarched in February 1990 when an MQM-directed strike in Karachi escalated into rioting that virtually paralyzed the city. The strike had been called to protest the alleged abduction of MQM supporters by the PPP. The resulting loss of life and property forced Benazir to call in the army to restore order. In addition to the violence in Sindh and elsewhere, Pakistan faced heightened tensions with India over Kashmir and problems associated with the unresolved Afghan war.

Benazir Bhutto

Finally, on August 6, 1990, President Ghulam Ishaq Khan dismissed the Benazir government, dissolved the National Assembly as well as the Sindh and North-West Frontier Province provincial assemblies, and appointed a caretaker government headed by Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi, the leader of the Combined Opposition Parties in the National Assembly. In accordance with the constitution, the president scheduled national and provincial elections for October 1990.

Nawaz Sharif

Mian Muhammad Nawaz Sharif was born on 25th December 1949 in Lahore. He is a politician and businessman. He was elected three time as a Prime Minister of Pakistan.

First term as prime minister (1990–1993) the first time came to power in a democratic Pakistan under Nawaz's leadership. Nawaz Sharif became the 13th prime minister of Pakistan on 1st November 1990.

- Nawaz Sharif's major focus was on the developmental project especially in Punjab and hill resorts of Pakistan. As time passed, Nawaz Sharif started feeling that he had gained support amongst the masses, and thus he began to act independently as the "Chief Executive" of the country. He first insisted on the enforcement of his opinion during the Gulf War, then he interfered in the process of the selection of Army Chiefs, and ultimately he tried to bring Constitutional Amendment to restrict the powers of the President given under the 8th Amendment. This was not acceptable for Ishaq Khan and the forces behind him. Nawaz Sharif also developed differences with his close political allies including Jamaat-i-Islami and MQM. Moreover, he was not able to fulfill his election promise of strengthening the economy by enforcing legal and administrative reforms, deregulation and denationalization, foreign-exchange and payment reforms, taxation reforms. Nawaz Sharif in his television address to the nation openly declared that he would prefer to be a "martyr" than to "surrender" before the establishment. He added, "I will not resign, I will not dissolve the assembly and I will not accept dictation." As expected, on the very next day, the president

Mazari announced that the next General Elections would be held on July 14, 1993

- Second era of Benazir Bhutto

- National elections were held again in October 1993. In a close contest, the PPP won a plurality—though not a majority—of seats in the National Assembly; Nawaz Sharif's new Pakistan Muslim League (N) (PML-N) was a somewhat distant second, though his party received a slightly higher percentage of the popular vote. Bhutto had the good fortune of having one of her own party, Farooq Leghari, assume the office of the president. Yet, the country remained economically unstable, and Pakistanis were far from developing a genuine civil society. Bhutto, favored by the Americans, had to juggle relations with them and the Pakistani people: Pakistan came under U.S. pressure to freeze Pakistan's popular nuclear program and to reach a settlement over Kashmir.

Second era of Benazir Bhutto

- Furthermore, in 1993, the United States (at New Delhi's urging) had placed Pakistan on a "watch list" as a state sponsor of terrorism. India cited Islamabad's support of jihadi movements operating in Kashmir, but the Pakistani public, as well as Pakistan's military establishment, had long encouraged and supported the development of a variety of resistance groups in what they had always termed "occupied Kashmir." The U.S. pressure therefore was judged offensive and denounced by the Pakistanis.
- The army earlier had guarantee a hands-off policy in political matters, but domestic conditions had so deteriorated that promise had to be reconsidered. Moreover, in October 1995 some 40 army officers were arrested for reported plotting to overthrow the government and kill the president and prime minister.

Second era of Benazir Bhutto

- Given the intensifying woes, Bhutto no longer saw eye to eye with President Leghari, and when he ignored her advice in dealing with the army high command and with changes in the Supreme Court, their relationship reached the breaking point. Leghari, uncomfortable with the constant intrigue, was ready to take direct action against Bhutto and her husband. That moment came in September 1996, when Benazir's brother Murtaza Bhutto was killed in a police shootout, and Asif Ali Zardari was accused of invovelment in Murtaza's death. In November, Leghari dismissed Bhutto's government.

Second time Nawaz Sharif era

- Second term as prime minister (1997–1999) · Atomic policy · Economic policy · Foreign policy · Constitutional amendments · Policy on anti-terrorism · Nawaz Sharif as the Prime Minister for the second time on February 17 with a “heavy mandate”. His party-men also managed to become Chief Ministers of Punjab, Sindh, and NWFP, and Akhtar Mengal of BNP took charge in Balochistan. Nawaz Sharif was lucky that Senate elections were scheduled only a month after he came to power.

Second time Nawaz Sharif era

- He nominated his younger brother, Shahbaz Sharif, as the Chief Minister of the biggest and the most powerful province, Punjab. Furthermore, though after the passage of the thirteenth amendment, he had no threat from the President, yet, in December, he got rid of Leghari and managed to bring in his party loyalist, Muhammad Rafiq Tarar as his replacement. He not only developed differences with the Chief Justice, Sajjad Ali Shah, and Army Chief, Gen. Jahangir Karamat but also forced both of them to quit. He wanted to gain absolute power, and for that purpose, his party tabled the fifteenth amendment bill in the parliament, commonly known as Shariat Bill, on August 28, 1998, the purpose of which was to become all-powerful Amir-ul-Momineen.

- But the event which made him a hero of the emotional nation was when on May 28, 1998, he, in retaliation of India's nuclear tests and disregard of the threat of sanctions from the United States, ordered Pakistan to go nuclear. Problems started for him when he developed differences with Gen. Pervaiz Musharraf, whom he had appointed as the Army Chief by superseding two senior Generals. Musharraf was not happy with Nawaz Sharif's initiative of "Bus Diplomacy" with India and when Atal Behari Vajpayee came to Pakistan in February 1999 he clearly showed his distrust by not welcoming him at the Wagah border. Kargil's conflict with India further widened the gulf between the two senior Generals.
- Eventually, on October 12, Nawaz Sharif dismissed Musharraf when he was out of the country. Senior Army officers did not accept Nawaz Sharif's decision and as a result of military coup, they arrested the Prime Minister and took over the command of the country. Musharraf, on his return, assumed the charge, declared him Chief Executive, inducted a non-elected civilian cabinet, and decided not to call it a Martial Law. Constitution was suspended and Provisional Constitutional Order was enforced. Six judges of the Supreme Court refused to take oath under PCO, whoever the remaining judges validated the coup and gave Musharraf three years to fix the system before transferring power to the elected representatives of the people.

Musharraf’s Rule: 1999-2008

General Pervez Musharraf was born in August 11th 1943, and died in February 12th 2023. After months of contentious relations between Sharif and Musharraf, Sharif unsuccessfully attempted to remove Musharraf as the army's leader. In retaliation, the army staged a coup d'état in 1999, which allowed Musharraf to take over Pakistan as a tenth president in 2001

Musharraf's Rule: 1999-2008

- GEN.PARVEZ MUSHARRAF's works.
- Referendum 2002. The referendum took place on April 30, 2002, with no competition and no option but to vote for General Musharraf.
- General Elections 2002. After three years of military rule, Pakistan again headed towards democracy on October 10, 2002.
- Prime Minister [2002] Zafarullah Khan Jamali. was elected the 19th Prime Minister of Pakistan by the newly elected Parliament on November 21, 2002
- Prime Minister [2004] ShaukatAziz. Becomes Prime Minister [2004]
- 2005 an earthquake. October 2005 an earthquake in Pakistan killed over 100,000 people in the country's north
- Lal Masjid Operation. The operation held in July 2007 • Operation was between Islamic fundamentalist militants and government.
- Major Achievements. of Musharraf 6. Major Industrial estates were being developed under Musharraf's vision: M3 industrial, Sundar industrial estate, Chakri industrial, etc

Musharraf’s Rule: 1999-2008

- Nine world class engineering universities were developed. The cost of building these Universities was over Rs 96.5 billion. 2. In 1999-2000 there were 31 Public Universities. In 2005-2006 there were 49 Public Universities. Air University (established 2002); Institute of Space Technology, IST (established 2002); University of Science & Technology, Bannu (established 2005); University of Hazara (founded 2002); University of Gujrat (established 2004); Virtual University of Pakistan,
- Death of Benazir. Economy effects on Pakistan: Following a three-day shut-down,
- 2008 Elections. On 06 September 2008 Asif Ali Zardari won an estimated 482 of the 702 votes from lawmakers to become what some believe will be Pakistan's most powerful civilian leader.

Asif Ali Zardari Era

- Asif Ali Zardari, (born July 26, 1955, Karachi, Pakistan), politician who served as president of Pakistan (2008–13) and de facto leader of the Pakistan. In the parliamentary elections of February 2008, the PPP captured one-third of the available seats, while the party of former prime minister Nawaz Sharif won one-fourth of the seats. In March the two parties formed a coalition government. Although disagreements destabilized the administration in the months following its formation, in August 2008 Zardari and Sharif led the movement to impeach Pres. Pervez Musharraf. To avoid further public embarrassment, Musharraf resigned his office. Sharif and Zardari were not reconciled, however, and their sustained fight ultimately caused Sharif to withdraw his party from the coalition. Zardari easily won the September 2008 presidential elections.

Asif Ali Zardari Era

- Zardari continued to play a key role in the PPP in the years after his presidency. He left the country in 2015, however, amid tensions with the security establishment. Shortly after his return in late 2016, he announced his intention to contest the 2018 legislative elections, after which he entered the National Assembly as one of the leaders of the opposition. As a growing number of opposition figures were pursued on corruption charges, including Nawaz Sharif, Zardari himself was arrested in June 2019 and released on bail in December. He continued to face charges of money laundering, however, and his son, Bilawal, began taking on a greater role in party leadership. Zardari completed their era.

Third time Nawaz Sharif as a Prime Minister

- Sharif began his third term as prime minister as a popular reformer. The economy improved substantially, with higher growth rates, a stable rupee, and lower inflation. The country's infrastructure, however, continued to face hurdles, with demand for electricity outpacing supply and resulting in frequent and widespread shortages. His foreign policy agenda was oriented toward liberalizing trade, including with Pakistan's neighbors. To do so, he made overtures for peaceful relations with India and post-NATO Afghanistan and attempted to reach a peace settlement with the Tehreek-e Taliban Pakistan (TTP), an Islamist insurgency operating in Pakistan and unaffiliated with the Taliban in neighbouring Afghanistan

Third time Nawaz Sharif as a Prime Minister

- Under Sharif, Pakistan saw significant investment from China as the flagship program of China's "Belt and Road Initiative" (BRI). China lent Pakistan tens of billions of dollars in order to develop Pakistan's infrastructure and build a China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) that would allow China access to cheaper, more efficient trade routes. One of the program's grandest projects was the development of the Gwadar seaport and a highway connecting it to China's Xinjiang province. However, with the development projects paid for through hefty loans from China that required employment of Chinese businesses, Pakistan's collepesed.

- The 2015 leak of confidential international financial documents known as the Panama Papers linked three of Sharif's children to offshore companies that they had allegedly used to purchase real estate in London. Sharif and his children denied any wrongdoing, but a corruption probe was opened into the matter. In 2017 the Supreme Court disqualified Sharif from holding public office, forcing his resignation. He was replaced by Shahid Khaqan Abbasi as prime minister. Sharif's brother Shehbaz Sharif was selected to lead the PML-N party in the next elections.

- When the elections were held in late July, Imran Khan's PTI party outperformed the PML-N. To guarantee security in the highly contentious election, the military had stationed at least 350,000 troops at the polling stations, and the Election Commission had granted the military express judicial power at those polling stations. While Khan praised the elections as the fairest in Pakistan's history, the PML-N and the other parties expressed concern that the military had interfered in the elections, especially after their poll observers were ordered to leave polling stations before votes were counted. Nonetheless, the PML-N conceded, allowing Khan to seek

Imran Khan Era

- Imran Ahmed Khan Niazi was born 5 October 1952 Imran khan is a Pakistani politician and former cricket captain who served as a Prime Minister of Pakistan from August 2018 until April 2022, when he was ousted through a no-confidence vote in the National Assembly.
- Highlights of the Key Achievements
- Loans repaid by PTI govt in 22 months: RS 5000 Billion
- Amount borrowed from State Bank in 22 months: NIL
- Panagahs established by PTI govt in 22 months: 200+
- Rs 2 Billion allocated to transform PM house into a university.
- Effective diplomacy saved Pakistan from paying $1.2bn penalty in Karkey case
- Kartarpur corridor constructed and made operational within months.
- Modi exposed across the globe, Kashmir issues raised at international forums, India isolated.
- 10 billion tree Tsunami project praised across the globe and being replicated by other developed counties.
- Sehat Sahoolat card being provided to every family in KPK. Providing Insurance coverage worth 1 million per family annually.
- Rs 150 Billion+ distributed among the needy through the Ehsas Emergency Cash program. And so many works he had done.

Reasons of down fall of Khan's government

- The PDM was formed in September by the leader of the Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam, Fazal-ur-Rehman, but constituted by 11 political parties, A new unified anti-government movement has emerged in Pakistan amid a worsening economic crisis. The Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM), an alliance of 11 opposition parties, was formed in September and has held large rallies in three major cities. It plans more protests in the coming weeks and intends to march on Islamabad in January. At the end the government of Khan's breaks down and took over the charge of country Mr. Shahbaz sharif as a Prime minister of Pakistan.